THIRTY-THIRD SUNDAY, ORDINARY TIME

FIRST READING Proverbs 31: 10-13, 19-20, 30-31

The chapter from which the reading is taken talks about "The Perfect Wife". It begins with a king's mother advising him how to choose a "feminine ideal", interpreted to be the practical and domestic counterpart of the didactic figure of Wisdom. The value of the perfect wife as a jewel of immeasurable value reflects how Wisdom is treasured by his followers. The attributes of this "perfect wife" are focused not on beauty and physical attributes but on her diligence in performing her manual chores and her generosity in sharing with the poor and needy, and most important attribute is fear of the Lord, which is the source of all wisdom.

SECOND READING 1 Thessalonians 5: 1-6

The reading is a reminder to the Thessalonians converts to live up to their identity as "children of the day, not as "children of darkness". Having accepted Jesus in their, they have passed from the darkness of ignorance to the light of faith and understanding; they have left behind the darkness of sin and are now embracing the light of good works and virtues. Paul warns them, however, to remain alert and sober so that they will not be caught flatfooted when the day of the Lord finally dawns. Being in Christ, they will look to this coming event, not with fear, with the eyes of Joyful hope.

GOSPEL Matthew 25: 14-30

The Parable of the Talents

A master entrusts his property to three servants before going on a journey. To one he gives five talents, to another two, to another one. The first two invest and double their gift. The third, out of fear, buries his. Upon return, the master praises the faithful servants and punishes the one who did nothing. God has given each of us gifts, time and abilities. We are called not to hide them out of fear, but to use them for His glory and for others.
