TWENTY-EIGHTH SUNDAY, ORDINARY TIME - A

FIRST READING

Isaiah 25: 6-10

This section depicts the enthronement banquet of God when he victoriously establishes his kingdom. A banquet on the occasion of the enthronement of a king was a public manifestation of his power as well as a sign of his generosity and friendship with the people over whom he rules. This passage occurs in what is called the Apocalypse of Isaiah, a post exilic vision of the future. The sharing of a meal together is extended to embrace all peoples coming together at the end of time.

SECOND READING

Philippians 4: 12-14, 19-20

Paul has just expressed his appreciation to the Philippians for the contribution they have sent him to satisfy any needs he may have in prison. Yet he does not complain of want, for he has learned to be content in any situation. Having or not having material possessions is not so important. What is important is looking beyond merely having or getting so that we see Christ at the heart of what we have or need. Detachment from material things, therefore, must also go hand-in-hand with generosity.

GOSPEL

Matthew 22:1-14

Jesus compares the Kingdom of heaven to a royal wedding feast. The first group of servants are the prophets sent to the Old Testament people of God. They refuse to go to the wedding. We enter New Testament times, and the apostles are sent to invite the Jewish people. Again some make excuses while others are openly hostile. So the king destroys the city of Jerusalem, and kills its inhabitants. Now the apostles are sent to the thoroughfares of the Gentiles and a general invitation is extended. They all gather into the wedding feast, the good and the bad.
